

03 Jolly Covid Postman - wolf's letter

Put yourself in the shoes of the Big Bad Wolf (pretend that's who you are). He is currently hiding in Rome after a horrible run in with a woodcutter. Sadly his last big meal was torn away from him (Grandma), so he is feeling a bit hungry and a bit sore. He is rather upset with Little Red Riding Hood as he was hoping she would join her Grandma in his tummy. Write a letter to Little Red Riding Hood explaining how you, as the Wolf, feel now.

Remember:

- On the top right hand side of the paper write your address with a new line for each part of it.
- Leave a whole blank line of space (this is the same if you are typing it) then put the date on the right.
- Leave another whole blank line of space then write "Dear Little Red Riding Hood," and a comma.
- Leave another whole blank line of space then start writing what you want to say to Little R. R. Hood.

What to write about:

- Tell her how you feel and why you feel like that.
- Then tell her what you are going to do next. It could be nasty or nice, maybe the wolf has changed his ways and wants to say sorry, or maybe he is still the Big Bad Wolf and has something mean up his sleeve!
- Include an acrostic poem of GRANDMA, this is a poem where you write the letters of a word vertically down the page and then each line of the poem starts with the next letter of the word. There is a bank of words for each letter to help you do this.
- Say goodbye: "See you soon," or you could say "Yours sincerely," and your name on the next line.
- Here is the bank of words and an example letter for you to get ideas from:

Dear Little Red Riding Hood,

I suppose I should thank you for calling the woodcutter off before he completely killed me. However, I am still very sore and haven't had a good meal since the little boy I ate in the forest near Grandma's. As soon as lockdown is lifted I'll be on the next plane to see if I can't finish what I started (I'll keep an eye out for woodcutters this time).

Gorgeously juicy,
Really the best,
And to think I was stopped,
No chance to eat the rest.
Do be worried,
My hunger is back.
And this time I'm ready for any attack

So long LRRH,

The BIG Bad Wolf
